SOME WORDS ABOUT — HWA YUAN —

Twenty years ago, chef Tang established the first Szechuan restaurant in New York and named Hwa Yuan. He wanted to introduce the authentic cuisine of his hometown to Americans who, at the time, knew only Cantonese food and Chop Suey.

Today, Hwa Yuan has grown into a Szechuan Restaurant chain with five restaurants throughout midtown Manhattan, Chinatown, Brooklyn, and Queens. Its emphasis on a complete menu, authentic flavor, high quality ingredients and warm service have made Szechuan cuisine the most popular Chinese gourmet in New York.

Aside from its proud history, Hwa Yuan is up-to-date on the need of Chinese food lovers. It has eliminated MSG by using chicken broth base and limited the use of starch and salt. It trims excess fat and uses only vegetable oil for the health conscious. It offers a menu that features steamed dishes with no salt, starch, MSG, or any preservatives.

We at Hwa Yuan hope that our services delight your palate, and that your first visit will be one of many.

Eric Asimov

It's an American success story. Immigrants come to New York, get jobs in a Mexican restaurant, work hard to learn the business, save enough money to invest in an automatic tortilla-making contraption and open their own place, the fresco tortilla grill, which churns out a variety of tacos, fajitas and quesadillas. Not bad for Rose and Deshi Zheng, formerly of China.

A surprising ethnic formula? Not really. If you consider Jews who cook Italian food, like mark strausman of coco pazzo, or Asians who have become french chefs, like tadashi one of la caravelle. "It doesn't matter what country you come from, as long as you know what you are doing." Said Mrs. Zheng, who handles the cash register and the telephone at the counter of this largely take-out operation, which she and her husband opened last summer.

Students, office workers and passers-by on roller skates pour in, many seem to be regulars. "Two 11's and a 25?" Mrs. Zheng asks as one middle-aged man rushes up to the counter. "Better make it one 11", he replies. "I gotta teach in 15 minutes." As the orders come in, Mr. Zheng goes to work, rolling small balls of dough and dropping them into the maw of the boxy metallic tortilla maker that the Zhengs ordered by mail from San Antonio. With a rube goldberg style whirl and hiccup, it emits flat circles of dough directly onto a grill, where the edges of the tortillas begin to curl and bubble as they sizzle. Behind him, a helper is chopping and grilled meat, chicken and onions. When the tortillas are ready, Mr. Zheng assembles the ingredients into tacos and fajitas, deftly wrapping them for takeout or putting on a plate for immediate consumption. the taco al carbon ($1.99) remarkably tender sliced steak wrapped in a soft tortilla, still warm and dusted with flour, is marvelously simple. A shot of hot sauce gives it a nice, peppery kick. Chicken fajitas ($1.79) are good, just as tender as the steak, with grilled onions. The soft tacos are also available with black beans, cuminy ground chorizo, gaucamole and chili.

人們愛吃狗不理包子，更想瞭解「狗不理」的來歷。

狗不理包子在清朝末年 (約1858年) 創始於天津，至今已有一百多年
的歷史。當年，河北省武清縣有一百姓饒家，四十歲喜得貴子，為保平
安，取名為「狗子」。此後，狗子一長好，長大後，
狗子十四歲來津謀生，在一家包子舖學徒，練就一手好活，他不甘
寄人籬下，就自己擺起了包子攤，備有各種手藝麵食，做出的包子口為香
軟，香而不膩，十里百里的人都來吃包子，因此，生意十分興隆，狗子
每天應接不暇，忙得顧不上跟顧客說話。這樣一來，吃包子的人就說狗
子賣包子不理人，日久天長，都叫他「狗不理」。後來，這世數在天津
開張新張，將「狗不理」包子帶入北京，做飯師傅，太后隨軍後隨太后
，說：「山中走獸雲中龍，隨地香昇海味鮮。不及狗不理香美，食之
長壽也。」。狗不理包成了貢品，從此名震神州。
狗不理麵館的分店是天津狗不理麵館直屬分店，由總店派出特級廚師
主理，一切作業按照總店百年來傳統方式製作，以保特原有風味。

The Legend of Gou-Bu-Li, Tianjin
ESTABLISHED 1858

In 1858, there was a farmer named Gao who lived in Wuqing County, Hebei Province. A son was born, and Gao became a father when he was forty years old. Everyone in the family was very happy. They named the baby Gou-Zu (little dog), and hoped he would be raised as easily as a little dog.
Gou-Zu came to Tianjin when he was fourteen years old. He worked for a BO-ZU (steamed stuffed bun) store as a helper. He worked very diligently and became very good at making BO-ZU. He decided he would work for himself so he started his own BO-ZU store.

GOU-ZU invented a special recipe for the dough to make the BO-ZU. His BO-ZU was soft but not greasy and tasted very good. Everyone within a hundred miles came for his steamed buns. BO-ZU GOU-ZU's business grew bigger and bigger. He became so busy that his customers teased him that GOU-ZU had only time to eat his BO-ZU and did not have any time to socialize (socialize) any more. People started to call him GOU-BU-LI (GOU-ZU NOT SOCIAL).

Later, Yuan Shikai started the "New Army" in Tianjin. He heard about GOU-BU-LI and introduced the BO-ZU to the Dowager, Mother of the Emperor. The Dowager loved the GOU-BU-LI steamed bun and praised the recipe. And ever since then GOU-BU-LI has been famous throughout the whole country.

SOME WORDS ABOUT — HWA YUAN —

Twenty years ago, chef Tang established the first Szechuan restaurant in New York and named Hwa Yuan. He wanted to introduce the authentic cuisine of his hometown to Americans who, at the time, knew only Cantonese food and Chop Suey.

Today, Hwa Yuan has grown into a Szechuan Restaurant chain with five restaurants throughout midtown Manhattan, Chinatown, Brooklyn, and Queens. Its emphasis on a complete menu, authentic flavor, high quality ingredients and warm service have made Szechuan cuisine the most popular Chinese gourmet in New York.

Aside from its proud history, Hwa Yuan is up-to-date on the need of Chinese food lovers. It has eliminated MSG by using chicken broth base and limited the use of starch and salt. It trims excess fat and uses only vegetable oil for the health conscious. It offers a menu that features steamed dishes with no salt, starch, MSG, or any preservatives.

We at Hwa Yuan hope that our services delight your palate, and that your first visit will be one of many.
